Evening Wedding.

A marriage that will come as a surprise to their many friends, although it has been whispered around for the past several weeks, is that of Miss Pearl Clark and Mr. John Wilkins, which occurs this evening at 8 o'clock. Both desire a quiet wedding. They leave this evening on the 6:15 o'clock train for Fulton, where the happy couple will have the ceremony said by the Rev. J. C. Reed, pastor of the Christian church of that place. Immediately they will leave on a several weeks' bridal tour, which will probably be in the east somewhere. The bride-to-be is a pretty and popular young woman of the south side of town, and has many friends whose best wishes go with the young couple. She will wear a smart traveling costume. Mr. Wilkins is the cashier and book-keeper of the West Kentucky Coal company, and a rising young business man. Miss Margaret Clark, a sister of the bride, and Mr. A. J. Gilbert will accompany the couple to Fulton.

Dinner Party.

IN THE LOBBY

When the chronic observer watched the young man in the same pew with him instead of listening to the words of the preacher, as he should, and saw the young man write some words on the little envelope which he dropped empty into the collection plate, the O. O. could not resist the desire to learn all about that little envelope. So he called on his friend, the treasurer of the church, and was shown the mis-sive. It read:

"I. O. U. 25 cents. (Name)

(Address)

It was just another case of changing his trousers without emptying the pockets, but it goes to show that no sort of embarrassing circumstance needs to stand in the way of the fellow who really desired to perform his duty.

And speaking of cars—

"That looked funny at first, but it's a great scheme," commented a traveler at the Palmer House, having reference to the string of cars attached to one motor coming from a ball game. The Paducah line gets away with a crowd faster than the line in any town of its size I ever saw," he announced. It's a great advantage Paducah possesses in being level so this scheme can be operated."

"That's right," chimed in another who has "made the town" regularly for years. "You'll find everything in Paducah run on the level."

Mr. John A. Murkin, Jr., of Nashville, who is here in the interest of the state poultry fair to be held in that city in October, has one of the biggest business cards on record. It reads:

"John A. Murkin, Jr., Nashville, Tenn.

Secretary Southern Poultry Association, Tennessee State Poultry Association, Nashville Poultry Association, Tennessee State Fair Poultry Association, Manager Nashville Poultry Show, Editor Southern Poultry Magazine and Editor of the Poultry Departments of the Nashville American and Banner."

It was one of those extraordinary, long cars with two steps instead of the running board along the sides. The little woman was trying to mount a park-bound car away out on Broadway. The conductor was getting slightly impatient. Yet, after she had lifted one foot and then the other repeatedly to the first step, desisting just as success seemed assured, he inquired gallantly:

"Is the step too high?"

"No," she snapped. "My legs are too short."
